Bellingham, WA, May 31, 2005 – Wood Stone is proud to announce several pieces of their cooking equipment will be displayed in an outdoor kitchen at Molbak's in Woodinville, WA. This outdoor kitchen in the Lowell-Hunt Garden Cafe is one of many garden layouts that the store will be presenting this summer to its customers.

Molbak's, a nationally and internationally recognized leader and award winner in the horticultural industry will be launching a garden project entitled, the Inspiration Garden Series this summer. This project was designed to offer new ideas and showcase best-in-class products to garden lovers.

The Weed Less, Water Less Foliage garden is one of the first to be introduced on the evening of May 31st and will be attended by those who had a hand in bringing the garden to fruition. The design of this garden includes the Lowell-Hunt Garden Café which features Wood Stone's residential Bistro 3030 gas-fired stone-hearth oven and Mt. "We are proud to have our equipment chosen for such a noteworthy project" said Keith Carpenter, Wood Stone's President. Wood Stone's residential equipment has been gaining popularity with consumers recreating their favorite restaurant experiences at home, and Russell Lowell of Lowell-Hunt shows how this is possible.
